On Saturday, June 5th, 2010, the 10th Lange Nacht der Wissenschaften will take place at different locations in Berlin and Potsdam. This year, the students of the Centre for British Studies ask you to join them on a fascinating journey to Great Britain and cordially invite you to their exciting event

“Mysterious Britain“

Support the famous master detective Sherlock Holmes by helping him solve a puzzling case. Be part of his very own tour through England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland and assist Holmes in uncovering the mystery surrounding the football cup of 1966. A great opportunity to explore the characteristics and cultures of this eccentric island!

Experience the tradition of English High Tea and meet real royals! Follow a Welsh dragon into the world of mining! Pit your strength at the Scottish Highland Games and have a closer look at the famous Loch Ness monster afterwards! Meet magical leprechauns in Northern Ireland and listen to the poems of Nobel Prize winning poet Seamus Heaney!

We will offer refreshments and typically British specialties in our pub. There will be numerous activities for younger visitors as well!
